YEARLY CALENDAR, 1911

April, 1911

From (30) Bussey's
 Farthest North ^{SUNDAY} 2

Mon. Dec 2 1895 2. day
 I can hear it blowing again outside, ^{5TH SUNDAY IN LEANT} Shall have an unpleasant ^{MONDAY} walk. It is bitterly cold in our warm sheep clothes It is not so bad when there is no wind, but even if there is only a little ^{TUESDAY} one might through one! But what does it matter? Will not spring one day come too? Yes, and over us arches the same ^{WEDNESDAY} now as always, high and alone as ever, and as we walk up and down here hivering we gaze into the boundless ^{THURSDAY} and all our ^{THURSDAY} organs sprout into nothing and night story, but unblinking beautiful. But not think not lead our quest to mighty wings ^{FRIDAY} have our control? Could we but solve the riddle of existence! We fall onward at the centre of the universe, and struggle for life, for immortality we seeking it here, greater in silent ^{SATURDAY} silent splendor proclaimed.
 At the command of the eternal you come into existence
